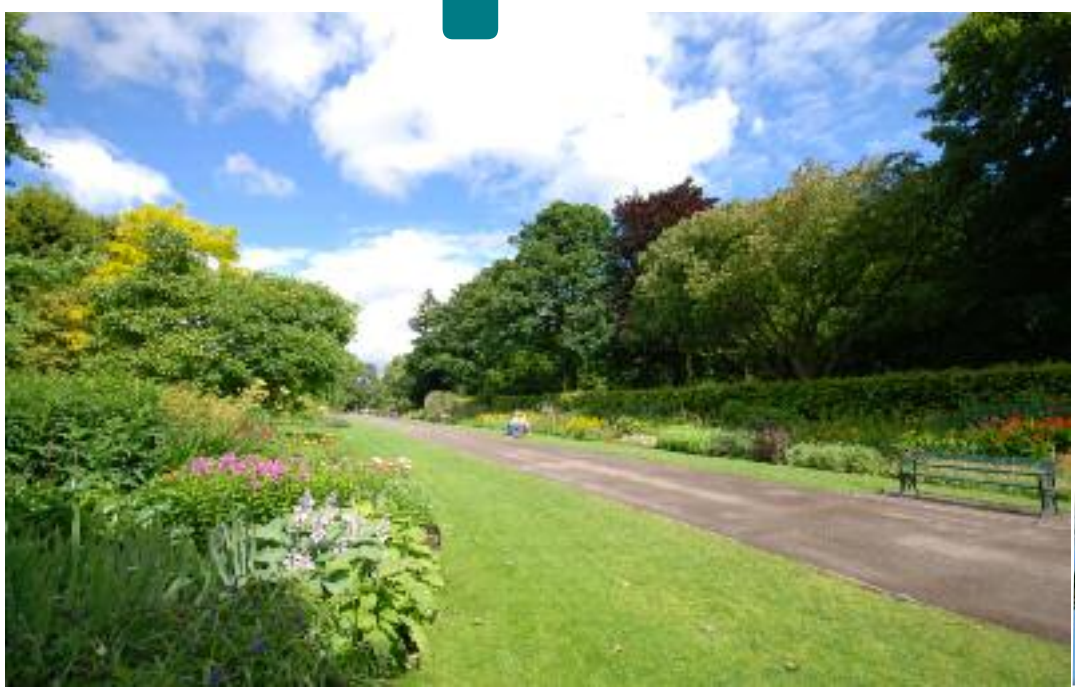
Cardiff Council Issue 141 September 2012



Bute Park is a national treasure

BUTE Park has made it through to the final of a major national award scheme – and your vote could help it win.

Following a selection process from hundreds of entries by an independent judging panel, the Bute Park Restoration Project has reached the final stage of the Best Heritage Project in the 2012 National Lottery Awards.

The awards are an annual search to find the UK's favourite Lottery-funded projects and aim to celebrate and recognise the difference that those projects have made to people, places and communities all across the UK.

Having been originally shortlisted with nine other semi-finalists, Bute Park received thousands of votes from the public, putting it into the final of the awards and the project is now up against Durlston Castle in Dorset and the Clevedon Curzon Community Cinema in North Somerset.

A new national public vote will open on Tuesday, September 11, running through to Sunday, October 28. The winners will be announced in early December.

The £5.6m restoration project, supported by a £3.1m grant from the Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF), has transformed Cardiff's largest city centre park into a place celebrated by the city's residents and visitors alike.

The project, supported by a new flourishing friends group, has preserved the park's unique heritage while creating educational and recreational opportunities.

It has enhanced the park's historical features, provided new facilities, widened access and helped tell the park's stories.

Bute Park has a listed building, famous listed boundary wall, historic waterways and a scheduled ancient monument - the park's medieval Friary site - all of which are being restored and interpreted as part of the project.

There are also many opportunities for community involvement and examples of several great projects to date, including the work of the park's regular litter champions, clearance of invasive species such as Himalayan Balsam by volunteer groups and clearance of litter and debris from the park's waterways.

Exciting new facilities have been developed through the project, these include the in-house training of horticultural staff and apprentices, educational visits, guided tours and information for visitors to the park and refreshment and toilet facilities.

Lottery funding has helped restore the iconic Animal Wall, build a new outdoor eatery echoing the style of an old park summerhouse, build a new education centre and transform the old park keeper's lodge into a tea room, gift shop and art gallery.

Improved pathways, benches, bins and signage have also been provided through the project.

Cabinet Member for Sport, Leisure and Culture, Councillor Huw Thomas said: "It is fantastic news that the Bute Park Restoration Project has made the final of this national award and I would like to offer my thanks to everyone who has voted sor far.

"Lottery funding has helped transform the park into a must-visit destination at the heart of Cardiff's city centre and it is a great tribute to the many people who are working hard to transform Bute Park into a place of heritage, education and enjoyment.

"Already success stories have included giving the famous Animal Wall's anteater his nose back, opening high-quality refreshment facilities and building a new education centre.

"I would encourage people to vote for this project and help recognised what a fantastic attraction we have at the heart of our city."

• Details on how to vote will be published In next month's Capital Times.

Don't forget

When you've read the Capital Times, make sure you recycle it.

A day in a life

The latest in a regular series looking at jobs carried out by Council employees. This month Lauren Harry, fly-tipping enforcement officer, talks to Capital Times.

I'VE worked in waste management in various guises since 2002 and I'm now a Senior Enforcement Officer with the Local Environmental Quality Team primarily dealing with issues such as fly-tipping, dog fouling and littering.

A typical Monday will involve leaving the office at 7.30am to check our cameras at a fly-tipping hotspot site. We attend with evidence bags and our pocket books in readiness for any fly-tipping we may need to investigate. If there's fly-tipping at our camera site, we search through the waste to see if there are any clues to who may have dumped it and then bring the footage back to the office to view.

On a Saturday in July, there was fly-tipping in a nearby lane to the camera. On Monday morning, we went to view the footage and the registration was visible and you could see them fly-tipping the waste. By Tuesday we had contacted the police, got the name of the person and the police went to their house and we will be interviewing the person under caution with a view to prosecuting this illegal action. So this is action prompted by our cameras at various locations.

We also have calls to deal with on a daily basis from the public, councillors and staff who have noticed fly-tipping incidents. We monitor fly-tipping hotspots and then log the evidence and everything is secured on databases, then we begin investigations. This will involve interviews under caution which we do in pairs and the preparation of cases for court to push for successful prosecutions.

As a resident of Cardiff it is annoying that people still fly-tip when there's so many facilities available for the public to recycle or responsibly dispose of their waste with the extra collections we have as well the household waste and recycling centres across the city.

Often, people are unaware of the consequences of their actions and the impact on the environment so it's very satisfying when we get people to understand what they are doing. So when we do get evidence and prove it in court or they admit it, it's great for the team and Cardiff as well as it's another person we've hopefully stopped doing it again because they've received a high fixed penalty. It's about changing their behaviour. Particularly when we get persistent offenders it is satisfying when we do get evidence and can take action against them.

The public can help us by calling C2C on 029 2087 2087 if they observe any fly-tipping or littering offences and give us as much information as they can, such as registration numbers, so we can take action. All this information can be given to C2C who will co-ordinate so we can act on it. We would encourage members of the public to help us stop fly-tipping and littering and get people to change their behaviour, that's our aim, to be as proud of Cardiff as we are.

I'm proud to be part of a brilliant team that helps keep this beautiful city clean and my message is - don't fly-tip, don't litter, look after your environment and if you see anybody doing it, let us know and we can take it further.

Register your right to vote

EVERY household in Cardiff should be receiving an electoral registration form, which is dropping through letter boxes now.

Residents are being asked to check and return these forms as soon as possible, particularly as Police and Crime Commissioner elections are being held on 15 November 2012 as well as future political elections.

How being registered will affect you?

As well as allowing a person to vote, the electoral register is used by credit checking agencies to assess applications. You are required by law to give the information asked for, so it is important to make sure details on the form are correct, as failure to register can lead to refusal for loans and credit.

We need your completed forms as soon as possible.
If your details on the form are correct you can register free.

Simply provide your two-part security code, which is on the form and register by one of the following options:

Telephone on 0800 107 5837
Text to 80212
Online by visiting www.registerbyinternet.com/cardiff
Post using the pre-paid envelope

If you have changed or amended your address or removed a name

Add the changes to the form and return in the pre-paid envelope provided. Changes cannot be made via telephone or the internet.

Why respond now?

By responding early, residents can help Cardiff Council to save taxpayers' money, as we don't have to send out costly reminders or staff to canvass door-to-door.

Confirming or correcting your details is easy, so respond as soon as you can using one of the various methods available. The deadline for registration is Monday, October 8.

- If you haven't received a form or you have a query about the electoral registration process, contact Electoral Services on 029 2087 2034 or email electoralservices@cardiff.gov.uk

More Than a Jobsfair

MORE than 1000 jobs are expected to be on offer at a special job fair taking place at City Hall.

Around 50 employers will be based at the event, which is a partnership between Cardiff Council, Jobcentre Plus and Careers Wales, offering a wide range of jobs.

Help and advice on all aspects of employment will be available from various specialist organisations and 100 young people are set to help out during the day as "event hosts", which will help them gain a BTEC level 2 qualification.

Three young people from the Youth Forum are helping with the planning of the event, which will be one of the biggest ever held in the region.

The jobs fair will take place on Thursday, September 20 from 10am to 3pm with a number of special events taking place throughout the day.

These will include a 'Dress to Impress' fashion show put on by high street retailers, local colleges and young people; an online application help zone with more than 20 advisors helping jobseekers with online job applications and industry showcase lectures from leading employers from the areas of security, care, finance, logistics and contact centres.

The jobs fair will also include a Jobcentre Plus initiative highlighting careers in hospitality, a room devoted to self employment and small business start-up and 'dynamo role model' motivational talks from notable employers.

Various employers have also agreed to hold live interviews onsite during the event.

Cardiff Council Leader Heather Joyce said: "I would urge anyone who is out of work to attend this event. A lot of employers will be taking part and the jobs fair will offer plenty of opportunities for people looking to get back into emplyment. This Council is fully committed to promoting job opportunities for local people and staging events like this so we can help people get back to work."

Meanwhile the Council Leader has attended a special event at Channel View Leisure Centre in Grangetown, meeting with youth workers and young people to discuss ambitions and opportunities in the city.

The event was one of a number put on by Cardiff Council's Youth Service to help and advise more than 200 young people who are not in education, employment or training.

• Councillor Heather Joyce talking to Michael Reynolds (left) Wales Lead Trainer with Construction Youth Trust and Hamza Khan, a young person attending on the day.

Young people from schools, youth centres, and community organisations in Cardiff attended three events at Eastern Leisure Centre, Western Leisure Centre and Channel View Leisure Centre where they met with youth workers, Careers Wales advisors, employers and local learning coaches.

They were invited to sign up to a programme in a range of sectors including: retail, construction, catering, leisure and youth work. The aim is to get young people to join a number of formal volunteer placements, which will lead on to courses, training and employment

Councillor Joyce said: "The longer young people lack contact with training or employment, the more likely they are to miss out on accessing many opportunities, which is why working with young people is a top priority for me. It's vital that we engage with young people in Cardiff who may already feel shut out from opportunities in the world of work and training, and offer them advice and support.

"I hope these events across the city will help those who attended to explore their options for training and employment and help them make the right choices to develop skills that will last them a lifetime."

• Former Olympic athletes Jamie Baulch and Matt Elias get set for the Cardiff Half Marathon

Calling all Marathon Men and Women

THE Lloyds TSB Cardiff Half Marathon will be celebrating its tenth birthday when it returns to our streets next month.

Due to take place on Sunday, October 14, the event has grown massively in popularity over the last decade and the 2012 race is set to be the biggest and best ever.

This year the event will be run over a completely new course covering key locations across the city, starting at Cardiff Castle, finishing at City Hall and taking in areas such as Grangetown, Penarth, Cardiff Bay Barrage, Cardiff Bay, Roath and Cathays.

Last year the Cardiff Half Marathon sold out in record time with 15,000 entries. It is now the biggest mass participation and multi-charity fundraising event in Wales and was broadcast on television around the world.

Race organisers aim to make the Cardiff Half Marathon the second biggest half marathon in the UK, after the Great North Run.

While every effort will be made to hold the event without any knock-on effects to traffic across the city, certain disruptions are inevitable as several roads will need to be closed on the day of the race.

Keep an eye on www.cardiff.gov.uk and look out for more information in the Capital Times on the roads that will be affected.

More than 10,000 runners have already signed up for the 2012 event and entries are selling faster than ever before, so if you are looking for a reason to get fit, raise money for charity or just want a different, fun way to take in the many sights that the city has to offer why not dust down your trainers and sign up?

Nigel Roberts, director for Run 4 Wales, who are the new race organisers, said: "It is great news that we have already rocketed past 10,000 entries, but we don't want to stop there. In paying tribute to the 2012 Olympiad we want to have 20,012 people lining-up in front of Cardiff Castle on the Sunday morning of October 14. It is an ambitious figure, but one that is in keeping with the ambitions that Run 4 Wales has for the event going forward."

News in brief

Cardiff rises to the Olympic challenge

With the London 2012 Olympics heralded a fantastic success, Cardiff was pleased to play its part in what was a magnificent Games.

The very first action of the Games took place at the Millennium Stadium when the Team GB women's football side took on New Zealand - two days before the Games opening ceremony.

With Cardiff bathed in glorious sunshine, thousands of fans soaked up the excitement before the match with the city centre looking at its very best.

On Your Marks, a whole day of sporting activity and colourful entertainment, took place throughout the city centre featuring a host of music, games and sport themed street artists such as The Life Guards, the Adjudicators, and Giant Footballers.

In total 11 matches took place at the Stadium and Cardiff Council worked closely with its partners including South Wales Police, the Welsh Government and the Fire Service to ensure all the events held in Cardiff went smoothly.

Cardiff Council Leader Heather Joyce said: "Having the first event of the 2012 Games here in Cardiff was an enormous honour for the city and once again we rose to the occasion.

"The Games has brought tremendous economic and cultural opportunities for Cardiff, reflecting the city's status as a world-class sporting capital and I would like to extend my personal thanks to everyone who has worked so hard to make the Olympics such a fantastic success for Cardiff and Wales."

Rhod Gilbert gives homelessness the boot

WELSH Comedian Rhod Gilbert donated his valuable time to show off his football skills at local homelessness Charity, Llamau's annual 5-A-Side football match.

A total of 12 teams made up of young people and women who use Llamau's services took part in the tournament alongside Rhod, with the winners taking home a trophy.

Llamau, which was chosen by the chair of Cardiff Council, Councillor Cerys Furlong as her nominated charity, delivers a range of services to homeless and potentially homeless young people and vulnerable women in South Wales.

Rhod, a multi award-winning comedian is best known for his stand-up comedy and TV show "Rhod Gilbert's Work Experience".

Llamau's Chief Executive Frances Beecher said: "It is great to have a high-profile figure such as Rhod to dedicate his time to our service users and also draw attention to the on-going challenges we face as a homeless charity. Rhod really got involved in the tournament with such enthusiasm and really took the time to get to know the young people - he's an impressive footballer too!"

She added: "As a Welsh charity we are over the moon that such an influential figure would take time out of his extremely busy schedule to spend time with the disadvantaged young people we work with – it was a fantastic day all round."

Funding for the event was raised by local football teams, and Brecon Carreg also generously supported the event by donating 200 bottles of water to keep everyone refreshed and hydrated whilst they showed off their fancy footwork. The match took place at Gôl in Leckwith, which was a fabulous facility for the matches

Bessemer Boys shine on the silver screen

A film about a council Household Recycling and Waste Centre (HWRC) has won a university film award.

The short film, Bessemer Boys, won the Caroline Stone award for best documentary at the University of Glamorgan graduation show held at Chapter Arts Centre.

Undergraduates Lucy Harris , Zoe Tough and Howard Colin filmed at the Bessemer Close HRWC over a number of days capturing the hustle and bustle of Cardiff 's most modern household recycling facility.

The film focussed on the staff who manage the site, with their passion for recycling as well as the many Cardiff residents who take advantage of the huge range of recycling and re-use facilities at Bessemer Close.

The documentary award is in memory of Caroline Stone, a former documentary filmmaker and tutor at the University of Glamorgan.

Lucy Harris was delighted to win the prestigious award. She said: "It was a great experience filming at Bessemer Close, the staff are genuine characters who were a delight to film and work with. These people genuinely care about reusing and recycling so were perfect subjects for a film we believe shone a light into an aspect of life many may not have any awareness of, which is what documentaries are all about. To win an award in memory of Caroline Stone was a great honour given her contribution to Welsh film and we were all thrilled to win it."

Cardiff parks gain from charity vision

CARDIFF Council's Park Services has formed a unique partnership with the charity Vision 21 (Cyfle Cymru) to help carry out work in Cardiff's parks.

The registered charity, which offers people with learning needs the opportunity to take vocational training with a view to employment, has been working with the Council for three years.

Several projects have been carried out by Vision 21's Fairwater Community Garden project which helps support parks staff in maintaining, restoring and looking after the city's parks and gardens.

Various tasks have included preparing and maintaining furniture and maintenance on park gates and railings.

Recent work has taken place in Roath Botanic Gardens, Waterloo Gardens and in Roath Park with the restoration of old benches which are being refurbished to be reused at other locations throughout the city.

Cabinet Member for Sport, Leisure and Culture, Councillor Huw Thomas said: "Working with Vision 21 has been hugely beneficial for the city's green spaces as well as providing the opportunity for people to gain knowledge and experience in our wonderful parks.

The group have done an excellent job and their efforts are appreciated by visitors to our parks."

Ken Bray, Coordinator at Fairwater Community Garden, said: "This partnership has given our students a fantastic, real work experience opportunity. The students get much satisfaction from seeing their hard work appreciated by people in their community, and the public are generally left with a more positive image of people with learning needs and what they can achieve given the right opportunities and support."

Public allowed a peek into beautiful school garden

THE garden of a Cardiff school was opened up to the public as part of a major charity event.

The National Garden Scheme, now in its 85th year, sees private gardens across the country opening to the public to raise money for a number of different charities.

The garden at Rhydypenau Primary School, along with four private gardens in Cyncoed and Llanishen, opened up for four hours as part of the scheme and visitors enjoyed refreshments in the form of tea, coffee and homemade cakes as they looked around.

The Rhydypenau Primary School garden has a vibrant array of features including an allotment where the children grow vegetables, a conservation area which includes a range of habitats for attracting birds and insects, four ponds, a teaching area, an outdoor shelter, an adventure trail and an impressive dragon sculpture.

All members of the school community, even the school crossing patrol warden, contributed to the development of the area in a bid to improve the school environment.

Three of the four suburban gardens were carved out of woodland in the 1930's when the houses were built and are surrounded by trees, having a multitude of shrubs, climbing roses, clematis, hostas, succulents and ferns and many unusual plants.

• The Rhydypenau Primary School garden

The owners have included sculptures and features in their gardens and two of the gardens have been maintained by the same family owners for nearly half a century.

The new address will be: Race Equality First, 1st Floor, West Wing, 113 -116 Bute Street, Cardiff, CF10 5EQ.

Parc Cefn Onn awarded a green flag

CARDIFF'S parks have been given a major boost after it was announced that Parc Cefn Onn has been awarded a Green Flag.

The Green Flag scheme recognises well-managed, high-quality green spaces and the award brings the city's total number of Green Flag sites to nine, with Parc Cefn Onn joining Roath Park, Victoria Park, Grange Gardens, Bute Park, Cardiff Bay Barrage, Cathays Cemetery, Rumney Hill Gardens and Thornhill Crematorium.

The success at Parc Cefn Onn is in complete contrast to eight years ago when the discovery of Sudden Oak Death led to concerns over the future of this much loved historic park.

In 2008 a programme of vegetation removal begun to halt the progress of the disease and two years later the Friends of Parc Cefn Onn were formed who have worked tirelessly with staff to halt the decline in the park.

The Council's Parks and Sports Service, working in conjunction with the Friends Group, have developed a management plan which sets out short, medium and long term actions.

And it was this management plan that formed the backbone of the successful Green Flag submission.

Cabinet Member for Sport, Leisure and Culture, Councillor Huw Thomas, said: "Cardiff's parks are a great asset to our city. This award clearly demonstrates the Council's commitment to managing and developing the park in conjunction with the local community."

Further improvements are due to be implemented at the park over the next 12 months, thanks to an award of £35,000 from the Landfill Tax Credit to the Friends Group for upgrading the entrance area.

Gareth Thomas, Chair of the Friends was delighted with the Green Flag announcement. He said: "This is great news for the park and just shows what can be achieved when local people work together with the Council."

• New members are always welcome and further details about the group can be found on their website at www.friendsofcefnonn.org.uk

Older Persons Forum starts prison visits

MEMBERS of the city's Older Persons Forum (OPF) will soon be visiting older people in Cardiff Prison to offer support.

Working with prison officers, Older Persons Forum chairperson, Tony Verderame, and his executive aim to ensure that the needs of older prisoners are met whilst in custody.

Tony said: "This is just a small part of the important work we do as the Older Person's Forum and our sister organisation the Cardiff Minority Ethnic Elder (CMEE) forum.

"It is important that older people, wherever they are, feel supported. We will also be finding out what is the root cause of their offending and reoffending and looking to offer support once they are released."

Cardiff Older Persons Forum was formed in 2005, in partnership with Cardiff Council, and meets every two months at City Hall. Through this forum the Council can consult older people and take advice on the development of policies that affect the lives of older people in Cardiff.

Members of the forum have considered and advised on a range of issues including: community safety; social care and health; nursing and care homes; council tax; age discrimination in employment and the preparation of Council policies including the Capital Vision and Forward Plan.

The forum has an Executive Group who meet to consider issues on the forum's behalf and offer advice. The forum has also appointed two specialist sub groups to consider matters relating to social care, health and finance.

The OPF and CMEE meet regularly and are always looking for new members. By becoming a member you can voice the views and concerns of older people; attend meetings, steering groups, events and conferences; make comments on local, regional and national policies and strategies that effect the lives of older people; work in partnership with a range of sectors to improve the lives of older people and receive minutes of meeting and agreed actions

• For more information on either group, contact Cardiff Council's Citizen Focus team:

Summer in Cardiff

Cardiff Festival 2012

Cardiff's first Mardi Gras parade

CARDIFF Festival is once again proud to include the Cardiff Wales Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender (LGBT) Mardi Gras in its line up of events.

Wales' largest celebration of diversity and equality starts with Mardi Gras Arts festival events across the capital from Wednesday, August 29 to Friday, August 31, which sees the inaugural Mardi Gras Parade, The Mardi Gras Festival at Coopers Field and the official After Party SuperMartXé World Tour.

Politicians, businesses and individuals will join the parade on the morning of Saturday, September 1 to highlight lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) rights in Wales.

Richard Newton, chairman of the Cardiff Wales LGBT Mardi Gras, said: "Statistics show us that trans and homophobic hate crime is on the increase in South Wales and that many have suffered bullying and discrimination in schools and at work. We believe that the key to stopping this is to create visibility and understanding and we want to do this by taking this opportunity to parade through Cardiff city centre."

The parade will start at the assembly point on Dumballs Road at 11am on September 1 and travel through St Mary Street and High Street before arriving at Cooper's Field in time for the main Mardi Gras event.

The main stage activities, which start at noon, will include X Factor finalists Marcus Collins and Ruth Lorenzo, singer Heather Small, Abel the Kid, Bright Light Bright Light, world supergroup The Freemasons and many more.

• Ruth Lorenzo

Mr Newton urged local communities, businesses and organisations to get involved. He said: "Parades in other parts of the country have attracted participants from all walks of life – universities, health boards, businesses, local government offices, the public and various associations. Our aim is to attract as many participants as possible to brighten the streets of Cardiff and take a positive stance against discrimination."

Cardiff gears up for Cheese and Habour festivals

• Action from the Extreme Sailing Series (top) and the Great British Cheese Festival

TWO exciting festivals are set to take place in Cardiff this month.

Cardiff Harbour Festival in Cardiff Bay will run from Friday, August 31 to Sunday, September 2 with a number of exciting events scheduled.

One of the highlights of the festival will be Cardiff hosting the UK leg of the Extreme Sailing Series. The event, racing Extreme 40 catamarans, attracts some of the best professional sailors in the world.

The teams battle each other at breakneck speeds around demanding courses, often within touching distance of the shore, guaranteeing spectators a grandstand view of the fast and furious action.

The Harbour Festival is also delighted to welcome back the British Fish Craft Championships for a fourth year as the country's top fishmongers try to out-fillet each other. Other attractions include a continental market, live music on the bandstand, alternative end of pier attraction 'The Last Resort' and spectacular aerial entertainment.

Meanwhile tickets are now on sale for the Great British Cheese Festival which takes place in the grounds of Cardiff Castle between Saturday, September 22 and Sunday, September 23.

This has become annual pilgrimage for cheese lovers from across the UK, with more than 9,000 people attending last year's event. Some 400 cheeses from around 100 cheese makers, many of them from the Specialist Cheesemakers Association, will be available to taste and buy.

There will also be numerous masterclasses and demonstrations to give visitors the opportunity to really get under the skin of cheese making, with vouchers for these included in the advance ticket price. Visitors are advised to book these in advance, as this saves £3.50, and many masterclasses sell out in advance.

Cabinet Member for Sport, Culture and Leisure, Councillor Huw Thomas, said: "Both of these exciting festivals are going to light up the Cardiff summer. Hosting the UK leg of the Extreme Sailing Series is going to be hugely exciting and is yet another example of Cardiff's reputation as a world-class sporting capital.

"The Great British Cheese Festival is a nationally recognised event which is also a great event for local residents and the feedback we get from many thousands of visitors who travel from the length and breadth of the UK is so positive. I'm really looking forward to it already."

EACH month the Capital Times will feature an object that The Cardiff Story has in its collection but need our readers' help to solve its mysteries.

This month, The Cardiff Story Museum is asking for our readers' help in solving the mystery behind these impressive fire helmets which have recently been donated to The Cardiff Story for its collection.

The helmets have an ornate high comb and crossed axes on the front. The donor was unsure as to when they would have been worn in Cardiff and the difference in use between the two helmets.

Do you know anything about these objects or do you have any memories or stories of working for the Fire Service in Cardiff? If so then please call 029 2087 1030 or email cardiffstory@cardiff.gov.uk

Community Centre under new management

GABALFA Community Centre is now being run by Cardiff Council's Youth Service.

The Youth Service will provide an important and welcoming facility for young people, with youth clubs running through from Monday to Friday evenings and daytime courses also available for young adults.

The centre will continue to play an integral and varied role within the local community and in addition to Youth Service provision, it will continue to be used for community activities such as Councillor surgeries and many other activities.

The centre had previously been operating as a Neighbourhood Learning Centre and adult learning courses will continue to run at the centre including computing, Welsh for adults and arts and crafts.

Existing users are now able to sign up for all these adult education courses with enrolment centralised at Severn Road.

A full range of Neighbourhood Learning services is also still available across Cardiff

Groups of young people will be managed while they are at Gabalfa Community Centre and a car park is available for people using the centre for courses.

Youth Service staff will visit local schools to promote the new service by attending assemblies to inform young people of the youth activities on offer at the centre. Headteachers at the schools will also be contacted and informed about what is available.

The On Course Neighbourhood Learning Magazine is widely available and provides details of courses available at Gabalfa Community Centre and many other venues across the city. For more information visit www.cardiff.gov.uk

10 year old becomes litter champion

PERSISTENT litter blighting a green space off the Taff Trail near the A470, has driven a ten-year-old from Tongwynlais to become a Keep Wales Tidy Litter Champion.

Ellen Weller, 10, was so sick of litter on a green wooded slope between the Taff Trail and the A470 near Tongwynlais that she wrote a letter to Connect 2 Cardiff (C2C), offering "to give up an hour of her own time at weekends to help keep this space tidy."

C2C passed this on to Cardiff Council's waste management team who then referred it to their colleague, Keep Wales Tidy's Tidy Towns officer, Chris Partridge. The Tidy Towns initiative encourages residents to take guardianship over their neighborhood and carry out improvements to ensure it can be enjoyed by all members of the community and protected for future generations.

• Ellen, 10 and Charlotte, 11 picking up litter on the Taff Trail

As the site needed immediate action Ellen offered to be a fully insured Keep Wales Tidy Litter Champion, with litter picker, gloves and a hi-viz vest.

She worked closely with Cardiff Council's Waste Management team to enter the site and litter pick it.

Ellen invited her school friend Charlotte, 11, along and, supervised by her dad Martin, the girls collected eight bags of rubbish (including one of clean recycling), a plastic chair and a large carpet which had been flytipped.

All of this was then removed by staff from Cardiff Council's Street Cleansing Team.

Ellen said: "We found loads of beer bottles, crisp packets, fast food cartons and even an old chair! It is sad to see how much people throw out from their cars without thinking about the consequences of their actions."

Cardiff Council's Cabinet Member for Environment, Councillor Ashley Govier said: "We are delighted at such a young age Ellen and her friends with the help of Cardiff Council in partnership with Keep Wales Tidy decided to take action against littering in her area.

"Littering of any sort is unacceptable and the new administration is looking at ways to ensure more motorists who disregard litter in this way are penalized appropriately. We work very hard to educate and prevent this behavior whilst continuing to support partners in the delivery of litter-picks and campaigns.

"The efforts of Ellen and Keep Wales Tidy are an important part of this responsive campaign. Well done to Ellen, she is a champion in every sense of the word and an example to many of us."

• If you would like to follow Ellen's example and set up something similar near you please contact Chris Partridge on 07717 412 270 or email chris.partridge@keepwalestidy.org

After 37 years Barry leaves stage right

PUPILS and staff at Whitchurch High School have said a fond farewell to the Department Leader for Drama, Barry Slack, who has retired after working at the school for 37 years.

When Barry started work at Whitchurch High in 1975, the drama department didn't even exist and he soon set to work encouraging a love for drama among his pupils. This culminated in the birth of the drama department and the establishment of the school's Drama Studio.

Down the years Barry has been involved in putting on scores of school plays and musicals, collaborating successfully with the music department on many productions, including West Side Story, South Pacific, Carousel and Oaklahoma.

Generations of pupils will have been involved in many of Barry's productions which were always incredibly professional and always received rave reviews.

But after years of dedicated service, the time has finally come for Barry to take his final bow from the school stage and begin a well deserved retirement.

• Barry Slack prepares for retirement

Speaking about his highlights down the years Barry said: "There have been so many. I have particularly enjoyed school productions and nurturing the talents of the pupils. Creating the drama department in 1985 has also given me something to look back at with pride. I will miss watching the talents of the pupils grow and being involved in school productions."

Head teacher Huw Jones-Williams said: "Barry has made a tremendous contribution over the past 37 years and will be sorely missed. I would like to say a big thank you on behalf of the staff and pupils and would like to wish him all the best for the future."

Biodiversity Corner

Biodiversity is all living things. It provides us with food, clothing, medicine, building materials and fuel. It helps reduce stress and aids relaxation. Each month Cardiff Council ecologist Laura Palmer will point out some of the great biodiversity you can see across the city.

SEPTEMBER

Spiders are in every Cardiff home. There are over 600 species in the UK. Most the time you never know they are there.

Indoors they will probably be House Spiders which are large, hairy and fast but totally harmless.

Spiders are fascinating. Their skeleton is on the outside (exoskeleton) – and as they grow they discard old ones. Some can change their colour like chameleons and young spiders disperse by floating through the air on a silk strand. Spider silk is five times stronger than steel (like for like).

Spider with prey

This time of year they seem to be everywhere, suddenly appearing in the middle of the floor and sprinting under the sofa. They have been there all year but now they are mature and looking for a mate so more active.

House Spider

If the ones at home haven't put you off, have a rummage around in long grass where you will find spiders of all different shapes, sizes and colour.

I'll be back next month with more biodiversity attractions.

News in brief

Join the Cardiff and Nante exchange

MORE than 20 visitors from Cardiff were treated to a civic reception in Nantes to mark the 31th year of the exchange between two of Europe's most dynamic cities.

Over the years Cardiff and Nantes residents have welcomed partners for a week into their homes, where they learn the language, develop a taste for each other's cultures and cuisines, and enjoy activities and excursions. As a result many long lasting friendships have resulted.

This year there was particular interest on the French side in the British Jubilee celebrations and the exchange participants enjoyed explaining about the events that were taking place in Cardiff.

The exchange is designed for people over the age of 18 with an interest in developing language skills and seeing another culture. If you would like to know more – and maybe take part next year – contact John Cranwell on 029 2075 7032 or email: nantes.exchange@yahoo.co.uk
